conservative candidate, was Hilda, was fired on and injured as it was leaving the town of Sauced in Biobio province last night. All the windows in his car were smashed and the conductor was slightly wounded but Montero escaped injury.

Alessandri, the radical standard-bearer, previously saw his train subjected to the same type of attack at Llanquihue in Chiloe province. None of the passengers was injured but many shots struck the cars.

Enrique Canas Flores, president of the coalition group supporting Montero, alleged that the assault on the Montero party was led by Augusto Smitmans and Oscar Chanks, former deputies of the left wing, and asked that party leaders prefer charges against them. The ringleaders of the other attack were said to be known and the region around Llanquihue was being scoured for them.
