

Nearly 2,000 advertising signs have been removed this season from the Adirondack Park.

This work, still going on, is in charge of the State Conservation Commission, and has received the cordial cooperation of the sign owners and property owners. It enforces the law passed at the last legislature by which signboards are prohibited within the limits of the Park excepting when on the place of business.

This law, passed through the efforts of the National Committee for Restriction of Outdoor Advertising and cooperating organizations, is one of the most important steps so far taken to conserve the natural beauty of the Adirondack region.

The Park includes much privately owned land.
